Why are so many of always wondering what the meaning of love is? Is it out of fear of uncertainty in a relationship? Or is it because we ourselves have been accused of not showing love for someone? And why is it that, even when we don't fully understand what exactly love is, we tend to make decisions–good and bad based on love?

INTRODUCTION

Being Single is of advantage till you realize what you missing. When you living alone a lot happens, doing crazy stuffs, trying a couple dates, things are not going your way, you feel like giving up because you are tired of trying. Hate loving and everything cornering it well here is a solution to the problem.

I have always wanted to experience that real emotion which happens when two souls collide. An epic moment that has to be cherished for decades two strangers from unknown pasts collide together don't know what magic brings these two together. Indeed it's such as magical feelings that happens when you no longer a dreamer and this is really a reality. Emotions start generating each and every day towards the two souls but I just want you to know that we only humans and nobody is perfect. We all have unknown secret pasts that we don't expose to anybody. Most of the times love happens at first sight. I don't know what exactly is in that first moment because when two strangers meet for their first time, they is always that magic that happens.

CHAPTER ONE

"Know who you're falling for before falling a victim"

A lot happens in human nature the truth is that we have no guarantee on how to deal with what can happen tomorrow or what it may hold for us. Some things happen as they are meant to be. There is a practical rule that governs a relationship and that goes "Never Fall in love to quickly" because if you do get ready for the consequences. Not every soul that comes your way is meant to last forever. Some people are meant to damage your physical image and to distract you mentally. Others may stay as long as they can. People have really tragic and terrible love backgrounds and indeed some are tired of being lied to by the ones they once loved ,they are toned down, they don't feel like they can trust anyone with their love life and that's why people stay single for a while. When they find a new person they expect him/her to erase the unthinkable pasts and to rewrite a new chapter in their lives. Further some people come into our lives with "Ambitious Intentions"

"We all want to feel loved indeed not played"

Not everybody you find loves you sincerely from the heart no, not really some just want your company, courage and more. It's always better to understand some body, know what he /she likes workout on your differences before letting your all in some body's life. You know at first sight everything you want is getting some body's attention and you don't have time to attend to her past issues all you want is to win her heart forgetting the consequences that may come out after a few days, months or later.

I have personally overcome a lot of hatrage, been left, experienced bad relationships and so forth. Some relationships are just not meant to last.

A girl came into my life surprisingly "Wow"! This was one of the best and the worst experience of my love life ever. We spent a couple of years before all the unknown started blowing up. Men we all have a weird first response when we meet ladies its natural. A lot goes in our minds at the first sight session

"Getting to know strangers"

Our sense of humor now is working at a very fast speed forgetting what to expect after this We had all the best moments, we cherished every moment together plus all the good times .It was late for me before I get to know the outcomes of this crazy love madness we had. Not all people are bad "Just a few". Getting to know a stranger is also major rule before engaging in. giving an example we don't let people (strangers) get the best of our attention before we get to know them. All am saying is that, get in touch with this stranger you admire, get to know him/her better before starting a "deep rooted relationship". We had achieved a quarter mile stone with this journey of our relationship. In the process a lot happens you know, we can't always predict what future holds with people we call our true lovers. We can't tell what our loved ones are secretly keeping from us. So I just want you to know that Love Comes naturally, Love isn't for sale, love will always come to you, in fact love will always find you. Don't ever fall in love to quickly. Be patient it will be just a few seconds till you realize what you have been yarning for has been near you for all the time.

LOVE RELIES ON SET RULES / CURFEWS

TRUST

We come from different families, past lives and so we want to make this "US" to work properly. The first rule is to be understanding to your spouse. Being capable of knowing that he/she is yours. Have faith in the person you love, Know that he/she will always be there for you whenever you need a little of guidance, Talk with her/him frequently, know what's going on in your lovers life. Care about them, we always have bad and long days at work, calm them down, guide them on what to do in order to release the stress. That will move your relationship status at a certain rate. And that's full trust I guarantee you indeed.

RESPONSIBILTY

As so many things in life require responsibility definitely love is one, when two couples meet a lot is expected from both of you but mostly the man. You all dare to serve. A lot involves in taking responsibility such as calling on your spouse, Chatting with her ,telling her stories ,dressing her , shopping, doing her hair, putting up with the all the households & morgue , and lot. If you can at least do this she will know that there is a special person to lean on when the times are changing. And if you can play your role right, respect her, respond to her Pay bills now that's full responsibility

COURAGE

Having a right spouse is not the end of everything in the world. Some time we go down, we experience bad things, we stress up for no good reason and we go through testing times all along. Always encourage your spouse on times like these because if she can trust you, she knows that you can take care of your responsibilities and now she gives you the flow to encourage her in these really bad situations and testing times. Be there, talk with her, and accompany her. And then you will have all her undivided attention.

CHAPTER TWO

"When love fails never give up"

When a relationship fails, we go through a test of times willing not to do the same thing again, we ought to abstain and we courage ourselves never to bother or temper with the previous pasts. Some people are toned down, can't feel like trusting any one anymore. Again love comes naturally and so you can't force it to happen. Even though you're at the worst times of abstaining from falling, love can happen again. Trust me. Different people we meet have different qualities comparing with the others. In times like these you have to at least have a little faith in yourself and trust the process that when a relationship fails you can always start a new one, never give up. Trust the process and place you bet. "Love is a bet"

People come into our lives so that we can fill the missing space they have left. And to brush away all the hatrage, grudges they hold on to

from the past. Matter of fact they want to feel at home again with somebody who listens, takes care of them in a special way.

“A lesson I learnt of finding love”

For years have learnt that finding true love, takes quite a long time. Falling in love is just a natural instinct. The heart knows what’s best and knows much what it wants and so with time you will meet the true person you deserve to be with. Of course not everybody is perfect neither I For instance been a victim of love and anyway these terrible pasts up righted me. People will always love you when it’s beneficial they will use you towards their goals and what they wish for. All am saying is that don’t abstain from falling but have limits and understand the person’s intensions because some people have terrible Relationship pasts.

When you finally find the true love of your life, love so hard, committee, take care, be the man she wishes to see every minute of her life. Avoid annoying her, keep in touch with her at all either bad/good times, consolidate her, courage her, I guarantee you will have found your true love “ladies need time”

The fact is that when this much love grows, at sometimes it bores, at first when you meet, you’re a just having only great times not even bothering about what can happen when this love starts to bore.

At first sight , the only process is to prove to this lady that yore are the real man, showing her anything you can do, making her feeling good and keeping her close to you before all the consequences start to blow up. But in anyway love boredom occurs due to a couple of reasons.

“Love boredom occurs due to a couple of reasons”

COMMUNICATION

Keeping in contact with your lover is the major rule you can play as a partner. People don’t take communicating fact as a major pillar of a relationship. Try each and every minute to check on your spouse, know how they are doing, talk to them, don’t seem to be so far from them, and try to be there wherever they need you. This will reduce the rate of love boredom.

COMPETITION

You can’t be in a competition with your partner unless at a given period of time, two spouses in love can’t accept defeat. No one wants to be down by the other indeed one tends to be on top of the other. I guarantee you that love like this can’t last. This is a service industry where all of you got to serve. Or if not this love won’t last a minute. Being down or being equals plays a role on lifting your love at a certain rate. Listen to your spouse don’t act like you don’t want to hear, respect one another which also contributes a percentage to your love. If you can’t be on the same page with your love you can’t last that much this leads to a wide rate of love boredom. Listen out to whatever your lover got to say to you. Don’t act like you don’t care, don’t compete. Then you will have a long lasting relation.

Some of the people are with us just in order to gain our comfortableness in other cases you may be materially well off, but when all of this varnishes they also find their way out. Others may stand with you in all kinds of way and these are rarely found. But sometimes I don’t guarantee you that they will last forever.so always know how to deal with such things before they happen. When a girl comes into your life and immediately varnishes for various financial reason, don't get annoyed my friend be a man "Money always comes and goes". Accept that she has gone or she has been taken from you and so don't give up on your hustles .you will earn it someday. Be patient don't stress of spilled milk after all we are humans that's how life goes just in case you haven't figured out.

This world is designed to break your heart. As for real rely yourself on GOD because he knows. Everything will be back to normal you have to walk a mile stone to find true love. Plus giving in more of your time to get the right spouse who understands your situation. I once reached a step of giving up on love indeed because not only I was done with relationships .Won't say it was because of not being well and the fact was that I was broke by then. But actually I just didn't know what these chicks wanted. Anything little you can get her she still fills like there is something missing. In the end she will end up being taken by somebody who can take care of her just because you're broke. "Money sometimes moves with love"

"Terrible lessons learnt"

This terrible experience taught me a lesson about work my ass-off just in case to achieve more and to never cry for love again like back then when I was broke .someone will love you whether you rich/poor, but some will only mind on the materialistic stuffs such as cars, phones, and some much and at times they may be essentials in ladies lives so if you can't have them you gat first hustle my friend. Time came when I started caring and minding less because at this point I couldn't give all my self away to anybody because I realized some people don't love you no. they are just using you. I took me time before letting anybody in my life or even all them to get the best of my attentions. Good enough had never had a heart break and up to now I can't tell you how it hurts and how it occurs. Being a victim of love taught me a couple of lessons I couldn't forget. This is also prevented from falling in love because of beauty.

When you're only looking for the beauty from ladies you're on the wrong path my friend .and we all want somebody attractive whom we can show to our folks. If you only consider beauty when you looking for a girl, you need to be aware that nice looking girls have a lot of issues mostly financially. So if you're to fall for one beautiful lady, get ready to finish up all her demands. After the crisis, started focusing on being somebody new , left the girls for a while .It always feels weird loving somebody who has no interest in you and when you find out you may break down. Do you know why people move from one person to another? It's either financial stress or sometimes loves just isn't enough?

In my early 20's I started falling in love but it wasn't all that serious in fact I was so sigh falling for somebody. Back then I didn't know what love is up to now I have no idea. i always approached a girl with an aim of getting her in my full control. But it is always difficult to manage a girl who doesn't truly love you .all am saying is that before falling now know where you stands because there some things love doesn't want to hear, broke , work on self be the man build up the empire. After that u can be the king of everything now

What's love really? Be sincere and ask yourself that question. Indeed you will end up here and there. Love is something difficult to predict. When you meet somebody all your expectations are meeting new things plus new qualities and changes in this new person you met, you're all cheered up as if she is the one you been waiting for., My friend you're joking!. People have background so don't just come in before knocking. You think they will just welcome you in their lives. Those who will just accept in their lives at first sight just know there are just players/users. The will manipulate you till there aims. At this point of time, love now ends when the benefits stop. True love will come to you always

Been there done that am done. To all the victims of love out there, Am sharing a master piece of my love life so that this at least it gives you hope and to help those who are wishing to fall in love. Not everybody is perfect, you have to expect heart breaks, disappointments, this is just the process in other words this is how love goes on there are possible solutions such as making up, forgiving when you went wrong, plus moving on indeed a few may do that. When you are broke, 98% a few will run away from you because they can't stand that situation. A few may stay but I can't guarantee you for how long they may last "broke is some disease". Financial crisis at some times don't go with love! A few number girls have needs indeed they think a man has to solve of these, not really. But if you can't do them am assuring you there is somebody else who does! What do women want for real? Anything little at least you can give but still they isn't staffed. Don't know man!

Been with this girl, at first it was all love back then, we were young, and actually we didn't know much about love. I had never loved a girl before hope you know that kind of situation in life. Somebody is just innocent state. But we had an intimacy and we did i all the craziness we could. A few months she varnished didn't know why?. But she left a big gap in my life spent a couple of years not hearing from her. I always asked my self-questions whether I did something wrong. Spent like two years wondering what the cause was. After a period of 2years girl come back telling how much she missed me! Am like damn she didn't know much she mad think otherwise, cried, and missed her so badly and she went without telling me the reason she wanted us to start afresh …and asked myself why? Really now she wants us to go back as we're crazy! Where has she been this long? What's her aim this round was so confused! Why me now? The most frustrating past is why she left me yet we had a good time together. At this point I don't feel like I know her. She seems strange and I don't feel like I can make it up with her sorry. She even tried to convince me how much she changed plus working waiting for her university study. She couldn't figure out why I couldn't get back to her you know as men a lot happen during the lonely life. It's the boring thing that happens in our lives. I had moved on when she left didn't have feeling for her like how I did in the past and so she needs to move on

We are just human some things happen but naturally we have to move on that's it. We can't get stuck in our terrible pasts. In other word we can't cry for spilled milk. Be a new woman or man I believe the right person is still out there don't go back to the old you just move on let by gone be by gone . Start a new life. Let those who left you for some weak reason, be your witnesses when you're experiencing what true love and beauty. That's what I always I did. Won't lie to you, I had a couple of girls I said to that I loved them but indeed we were just two strangers who didn't have to be together forever and so they left me !!!

CHAPTER THREE

Love will always find you for sure! You got believe. Anyway did you know what can make people love you? Here are some of the basic you can use.

THE INTERACTION

This is a true story, days of my youth, I was so shy ,mostly I didn't interact with no body, I was all alone didn't know the right words to use mostly while communicating with girls This was hard form . I was always quite. During the old school days I even missed taking the girl I love to prom because I was so damn shy. I missed this so much. I really had uncomfortable issues. It always felt weird but I was confortable when I was alone. I really admired this girl but I couldn't tell her. I was only in her shadows, not even thinking about having her in my real life. She was the first girl I really admired during my school times.

She was brown dark eyes of height as mine wow, just a mere thinking of here made mesmerized and indeed it really made my day but I was only in her shadows couldn't get to her to tell her how I felt. The worst part of it was when my folks found out that I had strange and strong feelings about this princess this was the most frustrating, teasing part of my life. Now asking myself what if she found out what could be next? Was so damn scared but you know at a teenage age you always reason like one. So she finally found out about a little wanting her so badly and he had feelings. And when two people are in love it's everybody's business to emerge in. these people will push to your worst fears pressure you reason being shy. Thinking they are capable of helping you out. but it went on like that till the end of high school she indeed knew that I loved her but that was my end of being with her because I couldn't talk to her yet she was so fine with but I couldn't so I ended up not interacting with her and losing her for good. I even missed my first kiss plus taking her on prom. Years after high school I came to realize that people are people there is no need of getting scared. Now I start getting used to everybody rather than I was shy back then. But first I had to work on my eye contact with the person am talking to. That's one of the best interaction step one has to offer. Plus having confidence and respecting people. And again let others talk to me while listening to them. The fact is that when you give people plenty of time and let them to talk to you these people who really find you a good person try that. Interaction plays a major role in falling in love with somebody.

I had to take a break from love. Reason being I really loved this girl and she was always busy. It was really had focusing. Sometimes love "just" isn't enough to people. Love comes with other little things like outings, shopping, dressings and so much more because these ladies are so fragile you need to take care of what they want because that's what they all want naturally and if you can't do that am assuring you somebody else does.

But another instance being broke isn't a major issue, because we all know that money come once and finds its way out sometimes you ladies got to be patient with us indeed. True love can whether storms, hurricanes and the challenges hindering it if at all you're patient enough. I know some set of rules governing love life, not to love so hard, so quickly and not say the word "I love you" that's the major problem and the fact is that all people use the players, real lovers and all. Some respond to this word in different ways plus others can say yes to it but indeed they don't mean, They just want to play along for a while with you. Truly saying I love you comes with price tags, terms and conditions that move with it. This means you're ready to committee, leave all the bad things you been doing in the past, be the new man or woman and be faithful.

We all have dreams in life we want to be somewhere tomorrow but sometimes these can't move along love and a dream. If you're after accomplishing something you want and love drops in you may end up accomplishing love instead of a dream true story. Know your stats before falling in love. Love can be good when it involves the least of beneficially not just finishing all problem for this new stranger you don't know for how long she go last with you. Fully engage in love when you're capable of fulfilling the needs. Don't fall in love because others are falling everyone has his own mountain to climb. Work on your materialistic life, Pray to GOD he has all the answers you need .Love will always come to you.The true soul will always show up. Been through a lot of love scandals in the past years, now I stand here as a pro because there is nothing new someone can come up with to bring me down , tone me down nothing really am always kin. I even tested out some girls once without an intention of loving them just to see what they do think of me and that kind weird condition.

Before settling or thinking of having bright future have a family this has sometimes be the process you have to pass through you have to go through a lot of relationship frustrations, disappointments, because for some of you can't just make it to the top of it all. Even though at times you may have it all. "Money can't buy love" love is love and money is money. Know that. A lot is needed more than just that even though a number may rely on money. And sometimes it's either way.

I had a lot I wanted to do, like starting my own business being independent because that's every employee's dream to finally stand alone. I was really employed for quit too long mostly in my early 20's.Reached a period when I was tired of this. Girls need care wherever you're that's natural I assure you. Provide the little you can and don't promise what you can't accomplish or you may end up losing her. Some advice here, some of you young people need to know your limits mostly when you're still employed these girls need more attention, taking caring of them but first take of your necessities before interacting with these ladies because they may drain you to the last cent.

CHAPTER FOUR

"Strong Advice to You"

Be contented, and know that the good things in life a free, they aren't going nowhere. Okay! Plus there are endless. Be that man you wish to be ,be you, be yourself , don't pretend to be somebody else, work on your success journey, every will be okay with time.

Some people in life are other's way through to the next chapter of their lives. In other words some people are meant to help others without expecting them to stay. They may pretend as if they are staying for long but indeed there leaving you soon. A lot of rules govern a good relation such as don't put in much of your time in other words don't try to care a lot because some people hate this if you didn't know, care but not too much .sometimes it leads to frustrations.

Given an example at the course of the day at least try checking on her once. Note most people love caring about them but a few hate this.

Don’t sell your heart completely, take your time before opening up all yourself to a complete stranger. These new people you meet have intentions. Love them but not hard. Because trusting too much may end you toned apart. You don’t need to rush for love. True love will always find away without any struggle to approach you. Trust me.

My intention for this book is that it inspires you, leads you to the right way of finding true love. Because most people are going through this but they can’t just lay it out. These are private matters. Not everybody has to know. In my opinion these matters had to been addressed to the public eye. I hope you find all that in this book. Relationships are tricky indeed you have to know that. Truly loving somebody is accompanied by lot of things such as hair treating, caring, plus shopping and more.

This book is of my own experience. And i intend to share it with you. The truth is that have been left alone, couldn’t figure out why they had to leave so fast. wherever you are or you go number of girls will focus on your material state in other words how wealthy you’re . but If you can’t support or provide am sure they will have to leave you. The messages learnt here is to never just rush into relationships, no where you stand. “Love is patience” .Never lose hope in your life, even though these people leave you or even when they don’t come back to you be strong and firm. Am not trying to be a love doctor here sorry, am among the victims out there who can’t address their love misfortunates, people go through a lot but seem voiceless. The reason why am bringing up this message so that it can correct you somewhere, it keeps you upright plus knowing the least you need to understand about loving someone.

Never, ever try to prove to girl what you’re not, please this is some most of us do. Be you, don’t hide yourself. Don’t try to put yourself in somebody else's shoes because you want to make her comfortable in your virtual life. Love comes naturally and it sticks firmly as times goes on. Let her fall for you because of your care, support, and love, that's simple.

Never say "I love you" when you don't mean it because some people are commonly used to full truth. So if you're using it for you own sake, this leave scars in people's lives.

Loves stands on truth that's of fact, some people need the right words plus encouraging them, caring, and being supportive to them that's all what love is about.

Don't be the expert of love you think you're right to be. No more my friend, most things in love need learning and taking your time to understand what is need step by step. There is no such thing as competition or expertise in a relationship , This is an industry where you all have to serve equally. Relationships can't work when one of you thinks he is above someone else, trust me.

When you fall down, try again because you don't know what GOD has for you. Just forget about your past love misfortunes because all what it brought was pain and misery. But this does not stop you from being yourself plus achieving goals, being a new person, these feelings will be stuck in your past for a short while but after you will forget about this when you have found a new partner and life will again be reborn .

We are filled with misery, hat rage in our hearts and this is a bigger burden with lift in ourselves and this hinders us from moving on or taking another step in life. Don't get stuck in your past worst nightmares. Try again always because some people are different, because you may even find out that what you have been looking for has been near you or just around you for too long.

CHAPTER FIVE

"Never be selfish to a girl who truly love you"

I had this girl who loved me truly, I didn't give her time, always minding about something else, she indeed stayed by me in all bad and good times. So sometimes you don't know what you had till it's gone". In the all world there is always one woman for a man and indeed there is always one man for a woman, Responsibility is a very tiresome thing to do, I was always skipping this. But indeed this lady never left me she was always there with through even the testing times. Always treat your girl right. Don't ever change because you are now rich or you have achieved something big. Maybe I was only young, dumb and broke probably I just didn't what meant to love somebody plus taking care of them. But indeed she proved to me that I was her one and only can you imagine? What a love!. No matter the situation there always people how will stand with you to the last breathe so never, ever mistreat, forgot them. These are your strong pillars, they will always abide and bear the hardships and will share the pain with you, don't ever forget about them. I won't lie to you am not sure why she always stuck with somebody like me despite the horrible situation I was in by the time. But you know when you aren't that caring, minding and loving these who are always stuck with you in bad situations they also have limits in bearing with your misfortunes. Time came she decided to leave me, she was so frustrated, I didn't give her time when I can, she was tired of me, had I known I would treat right, now I had to leave all alone, this lonely life is too dangerous, you don't feel at home any more. This house feels big, any little noise through the night is a nightmare, I was so embarrassed with my life. But as a young person you reason as such that. She left me but after some I pretended not to care, whether she left me ,I didn't mind about that. Courage myself so strongly. But again after years later I kind missed her because of the memories that I had shared with her , kept running through my head. So I felt like calling her because I came to realize that she was a different lady. I had regained my right thinking, grown up and noticing that she was among the important pillars in my life.

She was still there but funny enough she no longer had those feelings she had for me back then. Moved on, she's no happy, had I treated her right back then? In life there's always one girl who will understand your situation whether good or bad she won't mind about anything else, she will just love passionately so treat yours right before they have to leave you because chances of getting them back maybe so difficult. But if you happen to have a second chance, limit on your minding less, take care of them, be responsible, be the first thing that comes to their minds when they need a friend to talk to. Be a good man, trust them, be faithful, and don't be the frightening to dump them.

Nothing breaks a heart like not having those people you once had before, Everything becomes new, places you visited together and everything I had becomes a misery to you. The advice I give you is that be calm, be you , trust the process, don't give upon your life, after all everything in life has and end.

Making vows and commitment is a strong pillar in building up a relationship. Never make promises you can't fulfill

"What is love, where can I find love? "

DEFINING 'LOVE' IN DIFFERENT VARIANTS

Love is one of the most profound emotions we experience as humans. It's bigger than us, meaning, though we can invite it into our lives, we do not have the control over the how, when and where love starts to express itself. Maybe that's why 72% of people believe in love at first sight. Sometimes, love truly does strike like a bolt of lightening to the chest, and you aren't prepared for it.
Since love is inherently free, we spend nights tossing and turning in an attempt to understand what it is, and how to know if we have it. How do you define something so uncontrollable and versatile?

That's the tricky thing about love, we can feel it in a variety of different states–when we're happy, sad, angry, confused or excited–and our attitudes about love can range from affectionate love, to infatuation and pleasure. We even use love as an action, as a force to keep our relationships with partners, or friends and family, together.

The ancient Greeks used seven words to define the different states of love we can experience:

- Storage: natural affection
- Philia: friendship
- Eros: sexual and erotica
- Agape: unconditional, divine love
- Ludus: flirting
- Pragma: committed, married love
- Philautia: self love

Though there are many different kinds of love to experience, the romantic and affectionate expression of love is what, on some level, we're all seeking. The reason being that the majority of us find fulfillment through the comfort of a deeply committed and romantic relationship. In fact, 88% of Americans cite love as being the top reason they choose to get married, so it's easy to acknowledge that the idea of love plays a pretty big role in all of our lives.

THE NEED FOR A DEFINITION

But, because love takes on different forms, we can each experience love in our own way, which is why defining the term 'love' is so complicated. And so we find ourselves lying awake at night, searching the Internet for an exact definition because our culture creates a need for one–we want to know how others perceive love so we can determine how our love stacks up against that definition. Think about it: if you say you're in love with someone, but your friends or family don't see the chemistry, you might be angry when they tell you that it "doesn't look like love." Are they wrong? Or are you? How does one know who to believe–thus, as we do in this age, we search the Internet, desperately seeking to know what, exactly, is love.

WHAT IS LOVE? LOVE IS CHEMISTRY

From the scientific point of view, love is a powerful and permanent neurological condition. Love is chemistry and it's not something you can necessarily control. Take, for example, the difference between lust and love. Lust is a temporary desire fueled by an increased release of testosterone and oestrogen–it lasts for a little bit, then you normalize and it's gone. But, when you feel true love, the brain can release a whole set of chemicals, allowing you to experience it in different expressions.

WHAT IS LOVE? LOVE IS COMMITMENT

Love is so hard to define because it doesn't exist as one thing. We can feel love for our significant others, our parents, friends, children and pets. Some of us direct our love toward God, or celebrities, and we can hold love for our neighbors, country and objects. Love can be blind, misguided, tragic, unconditional, steadfast and inconsistent. It takes on many different variants, yet, at its best, love is a passionate commitment that we constantly work to develop and nurture.

WHAT IS LOVE? LOVE IS INFATUATION

When you take away the aspect of commitment, love is infatuation. When you're no longer passionate about someone, you're simply dedicated to him or her. Love that is infatuation is not really good love because, well, we often let our obsession become the root of the relationship, which might mean you're focusing more on the idea of being in love, or the idea of the relationship, than the actual relationship itself.

WHAT IS LOVE? LOVE IS COMPATIBILITY

Lastly, when all is said and done, love is also about compatibility. When you break down and analyze different relationships, one of the key factors is how compatible two partners are. When you share the same values, likes and dislikes, interests, political or philosophical views with someone you are much more likely to be compatible and thus, are more likely to fall in love. Sure, there can always be situations where "opposites attract" but there will always need to be some common grounds for the relationship to grow roots on, or it might fall into one of the other categories of love. Love and compatibility work together to build a relationship, so at the end of the day, you want to find someone you know you know you are going to be compatible with, right?

Love, what is love?, where can I find it really? That's a question people ask themselves at a time. What's your opinion on this? I personally I have tried but I haven't found the real meaning so far. What's true? Does it really exist? I know you all have such questions within your minds. It's really complicated, frustrating, and sometimes pisses of, to love someone who doesn't love you. But always do that pretending that they do but they aren't. You give in all what you got but in return you are toned down in pieces, you feel so annoyed and at a point you don't feel like love exits no more. This is the most embarrassing part of loving some body. People aren't trustworthy, they will always lie to your face, hold grudges, wearing faking smiles while talking to you face to face, is that the true love really?.

The lesson here is never to fall in love with some you don't trust, people are love monsters inside of them, If you just keep on trusting anybody, it will be more worse. Have you ever been sick of love?, this is an emotion that possess you and without it you terribly feel strange, this is because you're addicted to it. Mostly this happens when relationships break apart when everyone is on the other side of life. I really went through hell and back towards my unfortunate journey of trying to find love and what it means completely even though I successfully found nothing. But I didn't give up I kept on trying because I as time went on I came to realize that "love is a gamble". Some time you win and sometimes you lose that's of fact. So you got keep trying till the person you will love forever comes your way. Again don't rush for love the right person is there for you it's not just the right time for you so be calm and wait.

Have learnt that factors hindering relationships today are many but at least if you can pick out a few this can change your love life. Woman need care probably a lot. Have a little trust in them, never in a million years, check a woman's phone, that's engaging with someone's privacy. If you do you may end up regretting as to why you did check her phone. Don't make wait for too long when requires something, this is a crucial part, ladies love making their hair almost three times a month, respond to that. Naturally that's how they are created. Being responsible a lot will allow you to have full control of these ladies.

When you finally find a rightful spouse, now you can start thinking about building up your relationship to another level. It's been a great experience full of funny and amazing adventures, to this journey of finding love.

Lots of ups and downs, I may not there or I may not have full filled the act of falling love but, at least I have quite experienced what all the falling in love process is, have learnt a lot from my mistakes, plus this has changed my love experience to such an amazing level. I still do have hope in love and at least believe in it. But am assuring you the never stress, the right man or lady is out waiting for you just isn't the right time.

Learnt from my mistakes, ups and downs of love, my ignorance perspective of viewing love, my complete dumbness, been like this for almost decades but clearly I have gained the experience I needed and I hope it does the same to you. I hope this book discovers for your true joy of finding love. This is of my experience and the point of view I have known finding love. Indeed I hope it leads you to a right spouse for your future and builds you morally, I hope you understand all the concepts in this book even though it's belief but with an amazing excellent touch. No so many words in here but a few that can embark you on all the hidden treasures of the journey of finding true love even at the point of giving up. I also advice you never do something bad to yourself because of love, it's not worthy, such as committing suicide,hatrage, no. when you always fail , don't fall down, keep your eyes straight, and know that all beautiful thing on this planet are free and endless. "Never lose hope"

The One Thing You Must Do Before You Can Find True Love

If you don't have what you truly want in a relationship, then you are right, something is seriously wrong. But here's the important part: What is wrong is not you. I repeat, the problem is not you. You are not a bad person. You are not failing to get a wonderfully rewarding relationship because you are not worthy of it. In fact, I believe, to the absolute core of my soul, that you are about to discover a huge secret, in fact, I believe it is the best-kept secret in your life: YOU. This secret is not only being hidden from the people you see every day, bond with or dream of marrying, it is being kept from you.

The second thing I know for absolute, drop-dead certain is that you are not thinking right or playing the game well; otherwise, you would have what you want. You are a deserving and quality potential relationship partner, but you apparently don't know how to get in the game or play the game once you do.

And yes, it is a game. Somehow or another, people have decided that looking for love is some hugely serious process that must be approached with reverence and decorum. I guess I shouldn't be so surprised since seriousness is usually associated with desperate situations and "desperation" is a word I often hear from both men and women regarding their love lives. I agree that selecting a life partner and making the decision to walk down the aisle is a decision of gravity and deserves the utmost in contemplation, prayer and consideration. But, the process that gets you there is a game and a game that has to be played loose and fun if you want to win. You've got to play the game without sweaty palms, or you will never get what you are looking for.

Saying that dating and relating is, at least in the beginning, a game does not mean that it is trivial or frivolous. Make no mistake; I'm talking about making a major change in your life, specifically your love life. It's time to be a winner. It's time to start being a bride instead of a bridesmaid.

Think about it, the problem has to be something besides you. Don't you know women who are, in your humble opinion, not as interesting as you, not as smart as you, not as loving and caring and giving as you, not as cute or attractive as you, but yet they have a great relationship partner while you sit at home talking to your houseplants? Why? Maybe they just got blind lucky, but I'm betting they have what they want and what you wish you had and because they know how to play the game better than you do.

I know that there are also women out there that you just love to hate, because they seem to have it all going on. They're young, fit, stick-thin, energetic and cute. You're thinking, "How do I compete with that?" You stand in your bathroom looking in the mirror and saying, "Look at my hair! Look at my hips! I've got legs like stumps! My eyes are too far apart! This is the genetic betrayal that is my legacy! I am destined to die alone! Well, snap out of it! I can promise you that you don't want or need to be some beauty-queen model that spends her days on the runway. She may very well be home starving or puking up the dinner she just pigged out on, looking in the mirror and saying the very same things you say or worse. Besides, I can't tell you how many men I've heard look at those women and say, "Good grief! I've seen more meat on antlers! She needs to spend a little more time at the buffet."

If you're sitting at home dogging on yourself with an endless list of self-critical put-downs, then I guarantee that other people, including men, are going to find it very difficult to see value in you because you are hiding it so well. You're going to have to understand yourself and know yourself — and, as strange as it sounds, before he ever falls in love with you, you are going to have to fall in love with you.

To get where you want to go, you're going to have to rewrite the script of your life and make yourself the star. And, you have to define who you want to be your leading man. Then you'll know exactly who you are and what you're looking for. No more trying to be all things to all people. No more trying to guess what some man wants and struggling to morph yourself into it. You are going to be the best you can be, rather than somebody you are not, and I promise that will be more than enough to create the love you want.

Obstacles to finding love

Are you single and looking for love? Are you finding it hard to meet the right person? When you're having trouble finding a love connection, it's all too easy to become discouraged or buy into the destructive myths out there about dating and relationships.

Life as a single person offers many rewards, such as being free to pursue your own hobbies and interests, learning how to enjoy your own company, and appreciating the quiet moments of solitude. However, if you're ready to share your life with someone and want to build a lasting, worthwhile relationship, life as a single person can also seem frustrating.

For many of us, our emotional baggage can make finding the right romantic partner a difficult journey. Perhaps you grew up in a household where there was no role model of a solid, healthy relationship and you doubt that such a thing even exists. Or maybe your dating history consists only of brief flings and you don't know how to make a relationship last. You could be attracted to the wrong type of person or keep making the same bad choices over and over, due to an unresolved issue from your past. Or maybe you're not putting yourself in the best environments to meet the right person, or that when you do, you don't feel confident enough.

Whatever the case may be, you can overcome your obstacles. Even if you've been burned repeatedly or have a poor track record when it comes to dating, these tips can help put you on the path to finding a healthy, loving relationship that lasts.

7 Ways To Find Your New True Love

Some people have their heart broken so many times, their logical side wants to cut off everyone and never try again. Putting your heart on the line gets harder and harder with each new person. Falling in love, however, inspires passion, creativity, and comfort that you can't give up on. Don't let the emotional trauma and financial loss of past breakups ruin your search for love; instead follow these seven easy steps to find new love this year:

1. Forgive and Forget the Past

The first step to moving forward is looking forward. If you're focusing your energy on the past, you'll never get anywhere. Instead, focus on the things you can do now that will affect your future. Nothing's going to change by focusing on arguments you had with your ex. It doesn't matter who was right or wrong, and, if resolution were possible, you'd still be together. Forgive your ex and move on; not for them, but to enable you to find new love.

2 . Love Yourself

Once you've forgiven yourself and let go of the past, it's time to discover how to be comfortable in your own skin. We all have flaws and that's o.k. Maybe you're not the smartest, strongest, funniest, or most physically appealing person – whatever your shortcomings are, it doesn't mean you're never going to find someone who will love you for who you are instead of loathing you for what you're not. Stand up tall and be proud of who you are, whomever that may be; that way, when you find new love, you'll recognize each other.

3. Decide What You Want

Now that you're comfortable with yourself, spend a little time doing you and discovering what it is you truly want. When you were a kid, you didn't know what a government, economy, money, job, or any of that other stuff was; it was just you and your dreams. As you got older, you were taught how to fit into society. Somewhere in between your dreams and the reality you fit into is what truly makes you happy, and that's where you'll find new love that's worthy of your time, effort, and resources.

It's important that you and your partner enjoy and support the same things. This doesn't mean that sharing a love for hip-hop is an automatic reason to share a bond, but it does mean that if you enjoy an active lifestyle, a couch potato probably isn't the best match for you. You'll know when you find new love that's real when you support each other.

4 . Check Your Fears at the Door

I've heard countless people say they don't open themselves up because they don't want to get their heart broken again. It's easy to be cynical about matters of the heart: people are liars, selfish, and only like you because they want something. If you're afraid of being hurt, you're going to be hurt. You won't be comfortable and you won't act like the real you.

Confidence is essential to finding true love, so stop being afraid. Break out of your comfort zone and open yourself up to trying new things with someone new. Talk about yourself without fear of judgment; if the person you're with judges you, they weren't the right person, and it's better you find out sooner than later.

5. Stop Looking for Love in All the Wrong Places

You can most definitely meet someone at a bar, but it's a crap shoot; people are amped up, drunk (and likely on other substances) in the club, and there's a good chance the person isn't really who they say they are. If you're doing you, you're already in the ideal places to meet someone who shares similar interests. Instead of sitting around at home all day, go out and enjoy life. You'll bump into people doing the same thing and can form an immediate connection.

6. Keep Calm, and Go Online

Don't limit your search for love. Aside from going out and talking to people, you can also search online. Dating sites and social media sites are filled with people looking for a connection. Paid dating sites often have a better chance of success as the payment filters out many people who aren't serious about dating, but remember that internet people are still people like everyone else, so treat them as such, and use your instincts.

Dating sites aren't the only places to find love online; people have connected and hooked up on Twitter, Facebook, Instagram, Snapchat, in video games, on YouTube, and all over the internet. Human connection is something we all need, so anywhere there are people, there's always someone seeking a connection.

7. Patience Is a Virtue

Overnight success is a myth, even in love. Although you can successfully make a connection (and push it to the point of fornication) within a night, don't expect the first person you meet to be "the one." You may get lucky on your first swing, but don't give up. Just because you're looking for true love doesn't mean you can't enjoy the journey; dating is supposed to be fun, not a chore.

True love can be found anywhere; as long as you're out there searching, you're doing the right thing. Let go of your inhibitions and put yourself out there. Smile, laugh, and enjoy life with the people around you – sooner or later, you're going to find someone who you truly love and who truly loves you. Remember, there's someone out there for everyone and you won't find them if you don't try. If you're still unsure, hit me up on Twitter – I'm more than happy to lend a hand in matters of the heart!

Ten most common problems people have in relationships and how to solve them

Every relationship experiences issues and pressures at one point or another, from arguments to problems with sex or worries over money. Here, the 10 most common problems people have in relationships and how they can be worked out

1. Arguments

Have rules for rows, such as taking time out, not swearing and sticking to the point. Make a time to talk about any issues before they build up. Ask yourself what you're really unhappy about. Arguments about whose turn it was to load the dishwasher are often about deeper issues you haven't been able to express, such as anger or sadness.

2. Communication

Some couples have different communication styles, such as talkers versus non-talkers, or people who deal with things via talking versus people who like to get on with things. Other couples used to communicate well but have stopped listening to each other; instead they try to fill in the blanks and mind-read. Sometimes every conversation becomes a battle.

All of these problems can be overcome if the couple is willing to identify what goes wrong and make some changes. You can even do this by yourself if your partner won't talk to you about it. Ask yourself: "What happens when I want to talk about something important?" "When did I last try hard to really listen and understand my partner?"

Some couples who used to communicate well have stopped listening to each other.

Think through what you want to say first. Choose your time and place. Practice "talk time", where you each have three minutes to say what you need to say uninterrupted and then your partner responds. Use email or write a letter if you have something important to say that you can't find the words for. Try to use "I" statements and avoid blaming the other person; when people get defensive it's hard to listen well.

3. Growing apart

"Some couples change together, but it can be difficult when one of you seems to do most of the changing"

it's normal to change over time. Some couples change together, but it can be difficult when one of you seems to do most of the changing. It's important to think about how you can have a successful relationship with this "new" person and not spend your energy grieving over the person they were. This has the potential to be exciting, as you can discover new ways of being together. If you talk to each other and really feel you want different things as individuals, your relationship can still work, as long as you have enough that keeps you connected as a couple.

4. Infidelity

Relationships can be rebuilt after affairs, but it takes honesty and a willingness to respond to the wounds that are left. Affairs don't usually happen out of the blue, so it's worth spending time trying to learn lessons, such as were you both happy before, were you talking, did you feel you had lost intimacy? Sometimes these conversations are hard and you may find talking with a neutral third party such as a counselor helpful.

Relationships can be rebuilt after affairs.

5. Traumas

Life events and external pressures can have an impact on your relationship. Some people cope by pulling together, but it's just as common to find that events pull you apart. Try not to clam up and battle on alone. Let your partner know how you feel. For example, they may not realize that you're awake at night worrying about your dad's health and that's why you're grumpy in the morning. Try to see life stressors as something you face together as "team us". But remember that in a long-term relationships, other things take priority at times and that's OK.

6. Appreciation

You can end up feeling unappreciated or neglected when one partner isn't giving enough time to the relationship, by working long hours or prioritizing children, for example. Discuss this. What do you both offer to the relationship? How does the division of labour work for you? Sometimes it's about communication – for example, your partner values what you do for them but doesn't say it. Help yourselves feel appreciated by noticing and telling each other.

Some sexual problems may need specialist medical help.

7. Sex

Some sexual problems may need specialist medical help, either via a conversation with your GP or through seeing a trained sex therapist. Sometimes how much sex you want or what you want your sex life to be like can become a problem. It's worth considering how you communicate with your partner about sex and how you might be able to talk more openly. Also ask yourself whether the sexual issue is a symptom of other difficulties in your relationship or whether you are getting on really well apart from this one thing. If this is the case, talk about what you want and don't want, and be kind and respectful to your partner's wants and desires.

8. Money

Financial pressures can be a burden for many which is found that one in 10 people argue with their partner about money, debt or finances at least once a fortnight. However, keeping issues such as debt from your partner can also cause problems such as mistrust. There is no right or wrong attitude towards money, and some people are more naturally savers or spenders. If your attitudes are similar, there's unlikely to be a problem. But if they're different, it could be a source of tension in your relationship. Many couples find it helpful to have some shared money for their shared expenses as well as some financial independence.

9. Boredom

Most long-term partners go through phases of feeling stuck in a rut or where you love each other but do not feel “in love”, and it’s natural that your relationship changes over time. Companionship, compatibility, shared history and knowing someone inside-out are often the things people value in long-term relationships, yet sometimes these get taken for granted. If these things don’t feel enough for you and you want to create more excitement, try to think about what needs to happen, then talk to your partner. Try to be part of the solution to getting out of the rut rather than complaining about your partner’s role in getting you stuck.

Its very easy for parents to adopt good cop/bad cop roles .

10. Children

It’s very easy for parents to become polarized, with one being the good cop and the other the bad. Co-parenting doesn’t always feel co-operative when you have different styles. Often this happens as we have firm ideas that we get from our upbringing and assume this is the norm. House rules that you agree as a family can be helpful; presenting a consistent position on as much as possible can avoid the bad cop/good cop scenario. There’s lots of evidence that children pick up on parental conflict, so it helps them if you minimize this. Also remember that there’s more to your relationship than your family – you will be a couple even after the kids have left home. So try to find time for each other – it will benefit your relationship and that’s good for the whole family.

COMMON MYTHS ABOUT DATING AND FINDING TRUE LOVE
Myth: I can only be happy and fulfilled if I'm in a relationship or It's better to have a bad relationship than no relationship. Fact: While there are health benefits that come with being in a solid relationship, many people can be just as happy and fulfilled without being part of a couple. Despite the stigma in some social circles that accompanies being single, it's important not to enter a relationship just to "fit in." Being alone and being lonely are not the same thing. And nothing is as unhealthy and dispiriting as being in a bad relationship.
Myth: If I don't feel an instant attraction to someone, it's not a relationship worth pursuing. Fact: This is an important myth to dispel, especially if you have a history of making inappropriate choices. Instant sexual attraction and lasting love do not necessarily go hand-in-hand. Emotions can change and deepen over time, and friends sometimes become lovers—if you give those relationships a chance to develop.
Myth: Women have different emotions than men. Fact: Women and men feel similar things but sometimes express their feelings differently, often according to society's conventions. But both men and women experience the same core emotions such as sadness, anger, fear, and joy.
Myth: True love is constant or Physical attraction fades over time. Fact: Love is rarely static, but that doesn't mean love or physical attraction is doomed to fade over time. As we age, both men and women have fewer sexual hormones, but emotion often influences passion more than hormones, and sexual passion can become stronger over time.
Myth: I'll be able to change the things I don't like about someone. Fact: You can't change anyone. People only change if and when they want to change.
Myth: I didn't feel close to my parents, so intimacy is always going to be uncomfortable for me. Fact: It's never too late to change any pattern of behavior. Over time, and with enough effort, you can change the way you think, feel, and act.
Myth: Disagreements always create problems in a relationship. Fact: Conflict doesn't have to be negative or destructive. With the right resolution skills, conflict can also provide an opportunity for growth in a relationship.

You have been a great reader, great learner, I hope my little experience enlarges you on new ideas plus it opens your eyes, mind widely when it comes to falling truly in love. Love only hurts when it's true,

"So fall wisely and choose wisely".

GOD BE WITH YOU
